More Choices for Juniors and Seniors: Trimester Courses

- Creative Writing: This course is built on the workshop model used in the University of Oregon’s creative writing program. Comprehensive and rigorous, students write poems, fiction, and narrative nonfiction, submit work for review, and conclude the term by creating a personal magazine.

- Film as Literature: Students learn to analyze visual narratives by watching contemporary and classic films. Students also read essays on film, articles, and a novel.

- Dystopian Literature (Science Fiction): Students read contemporary science fiction stories with a social justice focus, as well as classic stories. We ask questions about intentional and unintentional changes that happen in society and how the stories we tell each other affect what our society becomes.
College Credit

AP Language and Composition and AP Literature

- Students may earn college credit for Writing 121 and 122 after passing a national AP exam. Last year over 100 Classic South students earned AP English credit.

Three years of science are required for graduation.
Minimum entry requirements for taking Biology as a 9th grader:

- A level of maturity and study habits appropriate for taking a sophomore level course.
- Strong grades (A’s and high B’s) in math classes and enrollment in Geometry or higher in Grade 9.
- Four terms of science that includes basic chemistry, basic physics, and earth science in grades 7 & 8 with primarily A grades.

At the discretion of the Department, a qualifying test may be administered and/or a student’s OAKS scores may be considered for students that don’t quite meet the minimum requirements.
